A DEGRADED SOLDIER.—In passing the corner of Broad and Meeting-streets, yesterday, we saw a fine locking soldier, a member of the 47th Penn. Vol., standing on a barrel, as a punishment, we presume, with a placard marked "thief" attached to his back. It is a melancholy reflection that a man who has faced "danger at the cannon's mouth," should so far forget himself as to be liable to such disgrace, and so public a degradation. We hope this example will be so salutary as to prevent a repetition of this peculiar punishment.

NICKERISON'S HOTEL.-By reference to an advertisement in our paper to-day, it will be seen that this establishment in Columbia is now open. To pass encomiums upon the ability of such a veteran in his business as Mr. NICKERSON, is certafuly not our province, for his praises are in everybody's mouth. We congratulate our sister city on the re-opening of a fine hotel, under the former courteous and obliging proprietor.

OUR RAILROAD TRANSPORTATION .- The great poverty of our people is evidenced by the tardiness with which our railroads are being repaired. Presidents and directors are persistent in developing such resources as they can command: but funds are scarce, and every bar of iron and every cross-tio has to be paid for in money. At the present rate of reconstruction, it will be some time yet ere the locomotive will range over its for mer extended routes. In the mean time travel goes on-the primitive times of May and June, in back-breaking, side-aching wagons are passed, and we now ride on springs, in comparative comfort.

But a new business has also been developed out of the necessities of the times. Every village in the up-country now has its enterprising storekeepers-stocks of goods are permeating to every district, and the work of transporting merchan-disc to all these distant points, and the hauling of cotton to the heads of our railroads, has developed a wagon business which brings to mind those long-a-go times when railroads were not, and when the sharp crack of the whip, and the merry gingle of bells, told of prosperity on the old Charleston business mart, which centered around the "Bull's Head Tavern," on King-street Road, long kept in great comfort by our now venerable townsman, T. W. Johnson.

But our intention was to speak of the facility with which our country friends now dispatch their cotton to Charleston and receive in exchange their assorted stocks of merchandise for the local trade. The business of transportation having been systematized, nothing is easier than to sell the cotton and deliver it in Charleston, buy a stock of goods here, and have them transported to any part of the interior. In the matter of forwarding, we direct attention to the card of Mr. WM. A · COURTENAY, at Newberry Depot. Information in regard to up freights can be had on application to Mr. H. B. OLNEY, No. 11 Vendue Range.

MAX MARETZER ON THE N. Y. HERALD.—I have never regarded it as a tie of affection between the diltor of the Herald and myself that we both happened to be of the same religion, nor do I accept a now as a reproach that I am of Jewish descent. affect of the Christians I have met with in this world were amenable to the same charge. Furthermore, there is nothing in the Constitution of the United States to prevent my being even a Jew. You will agree with me that we may both believe in a creed without doing much credit to it. I am not sure that the precepts of Christianity have been observed by 1901, Mr. Bennett. When cowhided and spat upon on the one side, you have not meekly turned the other for equal chastisement. Do not I remember that once upon a time you took refuge, like a craven, behind the crincline of a lady, just as now you try to screen yourself. Were refuge, like a craven, behind the crinoline of a lady, just as now you try to screen yourself. Were you the champion of the widow and the orphan when you hunted a helpless husband to the grave by the fear of persecution? Does your right hand know what your left hand does in the way of charity—or does anybody else's hand know? You beast of your wealth, but it cannot buy you respect—nor a proscenium box at the opera. But this you can do: give the cost of the proscenium box which you have occupied to the scandal of every opera habitue for three years, to some charity—say half to a Christian and half to a Jewish hospital. The small change, if any remain, can be handed to the Roving Diplomat, with the compilments of

Mr. Dana, late Assistant Secretary of War, passes his whitewash brush over Gen. Prince Napoleon has been spending large sums at the Dublin Exhibition. The papers praise him extravagantly—because he is extravagant, no doubt. to indicate it made a common has been
